RCAF Rescues Rescuers

This para-rescue jumper is pulled to safety in an RCAF helicopter after he was hung up in high trees and bogged down in deep snow in an attempt yesterday to rescue FO Bernard McCormack from a 2,000-foot ledge in the rugged country behind Squamish, B.C. Two other jumpers took the same route back on long nylon cables. On the next try, the helicopter plucked McCormack from his ledge. Another man was rescued by a ground party. Two RCAF reserve officers are missing, presumed dead, after two jets collided at 15,000 feet Sunday. (AP Wirephoto)

It May Get Warmer

Gale Howls Through City; Down Come Power Lines

Like Hitler Lie

'You Must Quit' Cruel, Selfish

MONTREAL (CP)—The Montreal Personnel Association was told by an expert actuary Monday night that compulsory retirement at a uniform age is cruel, un-Christian, uneconomic, irresponsible and selfish on the part of those who enforce it.

"If it were allowed to go too far it could destroy our private enterprise system," said William M. Mercer, president of the Montreal firm of consulting actuaries and employee-benefit consultants that bears his name.

"Furthermore, it is so wrong that it is like Hitler's big lie; it's difficult to refute."

Mr. Mercer said he favors voluntary retirement in the 60s but he opposes forced retirement at any age if a man is still mentally and physically young and wants to work.

$1,211,000 Paid For Oil Rights

Provincial government yes sale when an executive from Calgary arrived with his firm's bids six minutes late. The ten companies wanting to explore for natural gas and petroleum in the Peace River country, were Imperial Oil Company, which paid more than $500,000 for the right to explore on five parcels of land.

Gale winds of 30 miles an hour, with gusts up to 50, howled through Victoria last night, driving shivering citizens off the streets and blowing down power lines and barricades. Temperature was below freezing.

Flurries of snow were forecast for this morning here and up the east coast of Vancouver Island, but milder weather may be in sight.

Clearing skies were promised for the whole Island this afternoon, and the wind is expected to moderate today.

The Island, the weather office said, sits on the fringe of a cold air mass which straddles the nation, bringing low temperatures to the interior of B.C., the prairies, the maritimes and the north.

"Milder air could move in any time," forecasters said.

They predicted a high of 40 for Esquimalt Point on the West Coast, 35 here and 32 at Nanaimo.

Snow was falling on several up-Island points last night.

Parksville RCMP reported nearly two inches of snow and roads "pretty treacherous," but there were no accidents. Duncan had about an inch on top of the six inches already on the ground.

Campbell River had a flurry of minor accidents. About a foot of snow has fallen in the last few days.

Nanaimo reported a light powder of snow falling. Port Alberni RCMP said a mixture of snow and rain was falling on top of the six inches already covering the ground.

No snow was falling at Courtenay, but roads from there to Campbell River were being sanded.

Warm sunshine at Courtenay Sunday, following a heavy snowstorm in the area, only increased the troubles of B.C. Power Commission and B.C. Telephone Co. crews.

Melting snow on telephone lines caused short circuits, again isolating Comox Valley communities.

Telephone officials said they did not expect to restore complete service to Courtenay and district until the end of the week.

As many as 20 breaks were counted in a mile of single-strand wire.

Seven long-distance telephone lines were out north of Nanaimo last night.

Egg-Head Programs...

CBC's 'Long-Haired, Nut Boys' Panned

OTTAWA (BUP) — Henry Murphy (L — Westmorland) lambasted the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation yesterday for devoting some of its best listening hours to ballet, featuring "those long-haired nut boys cavorting around in tight, long underwear for an hour and a half."

Speaking in the Commons on the throne speech, Murphy pointed out that he had many calls from his New Brunswick constituents who complained about being subjected to "egg-head" programs in the middle of the evening.

"They would tell me that they liked wrestling, boxing or mystery shows," Murphy said, "but this type of (ballet) program, that the minority of viewers liked, should be put on at a later hour after the

"We are not all egg-heads," Murphy said. "We are paying for television and should be able to enjoy what we like."

He also took the CBC to task for "poking fun at the government and parliament." Murphy specifically referred to a recent CBC musical comedy program which reviewed "in broad farce the events of 1956."

"I would also ask that the private stations carrying CBC programs be arranged so we would have a choice and not have three or four stations in an area carrying the same type of program simultaneously."

RCAF Plucks Man from Ledge

Jettisoned Hood Blamed For Death of Two Fliers

Searchers Find Second Survivor

SQUAMISH, B.C. (CP)—One of two fliers who parachuted to safety following the aerial collision of two RCAF jet trainer planes Sunday was plucked from a 2,000-foot ridge Monday night.

Soon afterward ground searchers found the second man — FO Charles Martin, 24, a TCA pilot from Gable Head, Hants County, England.

Martin was brought to Squamish and today will be flown to Vancouver for treatment of face and hand burns. His condition was described as good.

PRESUMED DEAD

Flt. Lieut. Burton Patkau, 27, pilot, of Toronto and Vancouver, and FO Roderick Atkins, 19, a passenger in one of the jets, are presumed to have died in the crash at 15,000 feet.

It had not been established which two of the four fliers parachuted after the T-33 jets collided in flames near this Howe Sound community 40 miles north of Vancouver.

Helicopters rescued FO Bernard McCormack, 21-year-old TCA pilot, a passenger. He was flown to Vancouver for treatment of severe face and hand burns.

MARTIN QUOTED

One of the rescuers of Martin quoted him as saying his T-33 jet trainer did not collide with another plane as has been believed.

Martin was reported to have said he bailed out after his plane caught fire and that the canopy of his plane may have struck the other T-33 causing it to crash. He did not know another plane had crashed until told so by rescuers.

Johnny Watski was the member of a ground party which rescued Martin.

PROBE PLANNED

An RCAF spokesman said the air force position still is that the planes collided. He said a board of inquiry will be set up to investigate the crash.

The rescue was carried out as snow fell in the mountains surrounding Squamish.

Four planes will take off at dawn to search for the other two fliers.

The two survivors were located at mid-morning near signal fires in deep snow. A 16-man search party came within 600 yards of the stranded airmen but turned back at a signal from the helicopter crew.

Woodman Clarence Tatlow, who led the ground searchers, said they could have reached the pair in another half-hour.

"But the helicopter waved us out of there. We were sure the men had been rescued, so we turned back."

TERRAIN ROUGH

He said there was only two feet of snow along the route taken by his group. The terrain was rough, however, and it had taken the party two and a half hours to climb from a nearby logging road to the 1,800-foot level "almost straight up."

He said another ground party headed up the same route as soon as villagers learned the survivors had not been rescued.

The RCAF said the first attempt to drop a para-rescue team into the thickly forested area on a ridge between Squamish and Cheakamus Valleys failed.

The three parachutists reported they got hung up in tall trees and had to cut themselves loose. They were unable to make headway along the ground because of deep, soft snow.

The big helicopter which dropped them got them out by lowering long nylon cables.

All four fliers were members of the RCAF's 442 Auxiliary Squadron based at Sea Island, near Vancouver.

The T-33s were on a training flight when they collided in a flash of fire witnessed by scores on the ground and three pilots flying in the area.

LESTER B. PEARSON

U.S. Leads, We Follow

Pearson Faces Facts of Life

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada would be in a most uneasy position if it had to diverge widely from American policy in a critical situation, External Affairs Minister Pearson said Monday in the Commons.

Discussing—briefly Canadian-American relations, he said:

Why Not Sooner?

OTTAWA (CP)—Major Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, said yesterday that "a little more energy by the government could have averted the nine-day CPR strike."

The Progressive Conservative MP for Esquimalt-Saanich said in the Commons that the whole country was wondering why, if it was possible Friday for the government to impose certain conditions on the CPR and its firemen's union, the same thing had not been done two weeks earlier.

"I think we (the Canadian government) have made it abundantly clear that our acknowledgement of the United States as the inevitable and indispensable leader of the free world does not at all imply automatic agreement with all its policies."

"I have even been told by some of my friends below the line that we have a tendency to make this fact almost unnecessarily clear."

"On the other hand, it seems to me to be difficult to imagine a really critical situation in international affairs, which involved final questions of war or peace, on which we should be likely to diverge very widely from the attitude of our neighbors."

"If we had to, for Canadian purposes, we would certainly be in a most uneasy position."

"For us in Canada, therefore, to formulate and try to follow foreign policies which do not take into account the closeness of all the ties which link us—and must do so—with the U.S. would surely be nothing but unrealistic and unprofitable jingoism."

"In our relations . . . with the U.S., we have the fullest liberty to propose, to persuade, to advise, to object; and this liberty, I can assure you, we have used and shall use whenever a Canadian interest requires it."

"We will not, however, be using this freedom for the benefit of our country if we try . . . to ignore or take away from the geographic and economic facts of life on this continent."

Doctor's Hearing

'Greed Drove Him'

EASTBOURNE, Eng. (AP)—The crown described Dr. John Bodkin Adams Monday night as a "money-mad killer who systematically drugged his rich patients for profit."

"We say it was his greed that drove him on," said Crown Counsel Melford Stevenson, "a greed that was too great for him to wait until they died."

The 57-year-old doctor looked up from the prison dock. Then he scribbled on a note pad, and perspiration clung to his neck.

"The deaths of his patients have the same pattern," said the crown. "A rich patient. Heavy drugging for months. Then the fatal dose at the end for the patient under whose will he benefits."

DRUG POISONING

Stevenson accused the doctor, who has practised here 34 years, of poisoning three patients with "massive quantities" of heroin, morphine and barbitone.

The Scotland Yard sleuth, Supt. Herbert Hannam, who arrested the doctor, looked into the will cause.

of 400 elderly persons who had died here in the last 20 years.

The prosecutor said one of the strangest pieces of Dr. Adams' alleged behavior occurred during the treatment of Mrs. Hallett.

"Dr. Adams telephoned the coroner," he said, "and asked if he could have a private post-mortem on a patient."

The coroner refused and inquired when the patient died. Dr. Adams was quoted as replying "the patient is not dead yet, but death is expected and I can't give the exact time."

Little five-year-old Patricia Lindgren of Dawson City, B.C., is in Vancouver to undergo an eye operation. The youngest, the "eyes" of her blind mother, is in danger of losing the sight of one of her own eyes after she was hit by a paper pellet.

Bennett Accuses Sinclair Of 'Deliberate Falsehood'

Premier Bennett yesterday declared that federal Fisheries Minister James Sinclair had made a "deliberate falsehood" in his statement that people on the north shore of Vancouver were being forced to pay for bridges at Agas-is and Kelowna through tolls on the Lions Gate Bridge.

"I expect him to correct that," the premier said. The statement made by Mr. Sinclair last week in Vancouver, was a deliberate falsehood.

shortly before 6 p.m., Dec.
15, when Clement S. Gibbs, 408 Raynor, aged 72, was fatally injured as he crossed Craigflower at Raynor. It is alleged that Parkinson was driver of the truck involved in the accident.

First to testify was Const.
Roy Foster of the city police, who told of attending the scene, helping to place Mr. Gibbs in an ambulance, and taking measures.

The victim's body, he said,
was found in the road about 100 feet west of the intersection.

The officer introduced for identification two men's rubbers, each containing a slipper found at points near the corner and the body, and two pieces of plastic found on Craigflower about 30 feet west of Raynor.

At about 6:45 p.m., said
Constable Foster, he found a truck parked at an angle at 306 Admirals. On examination this truck was observed to have damage to the front grill. Both sides of the hood were sprung, and the radiator was looking.

He said he spoke to Parkinson about the truck; that Parkinson said he was the owner, that he had been driving that evening, that he had not been in any accident, and that no one else ever drove the truck.

When the officer pointed out the damage to the truck and asked how long it had been that way, Parkinson said since he bought the vehicle last March.

During examination of the were arrested at 4:30 a.m. Sunday police found a half-pair day in a car at Beach Drive and Dalhousie.

abor Asks $1.25 Minimum Wage

By PETER BRUTON

Delegates representing more than 100,000 B.C. trade unionists yesterday urged the provincial government to introduce a 40-hour week at a minimum wage of $1.25 for all workers in the province.

The annual submission, which was presented in a brief to the cabinet, is noted that the present week was introduced 10 years ago and since then the province has seen a strong growth.

The government was also asked to have an amendment to the Workmen's Compensation Act to provide for a 100 per cent payment of total earnings to the victims of industrial accidents, that widows' benefits be increased to $100 a month.

OVERAGE
Legislation said labor felt compensation coverage given for all industrial workers and that the age of retirement be increased to 18.

It also said a major drive should be conducted to build the roads required to serve the province and that the present rate of the major highway tax be increased to 18 per cent.

McKenzie Drops From Labor Race

Jack McKenzie, president of the Victoria Labor Council, announced last night he would not stand for re-election at the annual meeting of the body Wednesday night.

With DWA negotiations continuing up this year, I don't feel I can do the work in conjunction with the state aeronautics president," he said.

Three others were nominated for the presidency at the last labor council meeting and more could be nominated Wednesday. Already running are Percy Rayment, who has resigned his full-time position of council secretary-treasurer; Robert Barrie, president of the Canadian Chemical and Explosives Workers, federal 128, at James Island, and Victor Midgley, carpenter's international representative.

Observers said the decree was so all-inclusive it would make it illegal for workers to discuss among themselves possible strike measures or for foreign reporters to question workers, as in the past, about happenings in their factories.

Enactment of the decree came with reports of fresh industrial disorders in Budapest and stepped-up partisan activity in Western Hungary.

Meanwhile, the official Communist party newspaper Nepszabadsag predicted a grim year for Hungary with large scale layoffs of workers seen as a vital measure to combat the threat of inflation.

IMMIGRATION MINISTER PICKERSGILL'S unfeeling refusal to grant immigrant status to Christian Hanna is in strange contrast to other recorded instances of his department stretching the rules to accord special favors no more deserved than those sought on behalf of Hanna. This young man, whose case has attracted sympathetic attention all across Canada, arrived at Vancouver as a stow-away aboard a Norwegian freighter whose captain for 15 months has been unable to find any country willing to let him land. Hanna, a wanderer by force of circumstances all his life, does not know where he was born; and among other stipulations Canada requires prospective immigrants to produce proof of birthplace.

In reply to questions in the House of Commons, Mr. Pickersgill stated with the cold formality which is characteristic of his department's dealings that Hanna was "in no way admissible" under the Immigration Act, and that at least four or five other requirements would have to be set aside if he were to be allowed in. Well, what of it? The Immigration Act is only a piece of paper after all. If the minister is unwilling or legally unable to waive some of its provisions for the sake of common humanity what is to stop him from presenting a request to Parliament, now in session?

In all that has been published about the case, and in the statements of Mr. Pickersgill and his officials, there has been not one word to suggest that Hanna is an undesirable person or that he would have been refused admission if able to produce a birth certificate. Mr. Pickersgill is bold enough to say that he does not believe Hanna to be a person who would spend his life in any one place; but who is he to read a man's intentions from a record as unfortunate as Hanna's?

During the 23 years of his life Hanna has never known what it is to have a country, and no one can tell what he would do if he found one. Above all else he is a human being, with the right to put his feet down somewhere. The chances are that he would be more loyal to the country with a big enough heart to adopt him than many of its own people who take the accident of citizenship for granted.

New Man at the Helm

ANNOUNCEMENT of his cabinet by Great Britain's new prime minister, Mr. Harold Macmillan, is being interpreted in some quarters as a reaffirmation of the Eden policy on Suez. There are few changes from Sir Anthony Eden's administration, and none of note. The foreign secretaryship, a key post, remains in the same hands. All the chief ministers are retained with a slight shuffling of portfolios. If there had been any thought that Mr. Macmillan would sweep clean as with a new broom it has been unfounded.

As a strong supporter of his predecessor the new prime minister could not have been expected to revolutionize his cabinet. Quite obviously he sees no more reason than did Sir Anthony Eden to apologize for the Suez intervention. In any case he could hardly entrust important portfolios entirely to new hands; he must have a cabinet of continuing experience, for a time at least. The nuances of the situation are now different, nevertheless. As a new prime minister his administration takes on a fresh coloring from the old, and it is the future course to be charted which will be significant. That it will be precisely the same is not in the cards, if only because men are different and even if in general political leaders subscribe to the same policy the operative aspect is bound to be altered. Mr. Macmillan's initial cabinet may also be of a hold-the-fort nature until he has settled firmly into office; there may be changes to come later.

Mr. Macmillan secured preferment at the expense of Mr. R. A. Butler, a matter exercising the minds of some British circles as a result, and he thus becomes one of the prominent men of the world. As a product of Eton and Balliol he is frequently cited as of the aristocratic mould and his style and manners bear this out. Actually he is an example of the change that a few generations can bring about. His great-grandfather was a poor Scots farmer whose son sought his fortune in England and became the founder of the well-known publishing firm that bears the imprint of Macmillan. There is a branch of the company in Canada. Prime Minister Macmillan has wit, urbanity and culture at his command, but one suspects that his background also adds toughness to his inner fibres. He will need this latter element as he takes on an immensely difficult task.

Amending the Census

ADJUSTMENT of an obviously faulty reckoning of Victoria's population in the mid-term census recently conducted by the Dominion not only substantiates the objection advanced by the City but also will save the community an initial loss under per capita grants of approximately $10,000 per annum. A census does not mean much if it is not accurate; while a difference of 1,500 names in a roster of 54,588 is a fairly large discrepancy. If the same percentage of error applied throughout Canada and for the same reason, the statistics of the federal bureau would have little meaning for the nation.

In the adjustment the federal bureau seems to have added 1,500 names as a make-weight to the Victoria count returned by its own officials. This does not match the discrepancy that is believed at the City Hall to exist, but it is some concession to the City's objections. The excuse given by Ottawa is arresting; names were omitted, it is claimed, because some of the Royal Canadian Navy's resident personnel here were not in port when the five-year census was taken. That seems an astonishing excuse in connection with men who are domiciled here. Would the same lapse apply to any civilian citizen who was out of town during the period of the count? If so, the City may be correct in its contention that 1,500 omissions still do not cover the actual gap.

In the recent intermediate census most cities in Canada appeared satisfied with the result. Victoria was one of the exceptions, but on a discrepancy so marked that it has been obvious from the start that something had slipped in the name-taking here. As the City has shown, it is not merely a question of civic pride. A sum of $48,750 over the next five years has been saved to the community by the 1,500 names now added to the roster; and that is not in any sense a final figure, because per capita weight enters into a number of different forms of grants under governmental disbursements. For its own sake, the census bureau should tighten up on its methods, for this is a haphazard way of repairing established omissions.

Mollet May Visit Poland

By BERNARD KAPLAN

North American Newspaper Alliance

PARIS—Premier Guy Mollet is understood to be considering a dramatic visit to Poland and a meeting with Polish national Communist leader Wladyslaw Gomulka. He would be the highest ranking Western statesman to visit Warsaw since 1939.

According to reliable informants here, the French cabinet's proposed trip would have two primary aims. The first, to point up the West's determination to create direct and thoroughly free relations, particularly trade relations, with Poland and any other Communist nation able to loosen its ties to the Soviet Union.

But the second objective would be to reassure both Russians and Poles that the West is just as anxious as they to erect guarantees against a united Germany's possible new aggressive tendencies toward the East.

The three nations that stand to risk most when Germany is reunited are Russia, Poland and France. Mollet and his advisers reportedly feel that this makes France the most likely of the Western powers to be able to discuss the German question profitably with the Poles and, ultimately, with Moscow. They believe that French diplomacy may be capable of paving the way for the final negotiations which must take place between Russia and the U.S., the two powers with the greatest military stake in Germany.

Hesitancy over German reunification has now all but disappeared in high French circles.

It has been replaced by the conviction that a divided Germany is the paramount threat to peace.

On the other hand, Mollet and Foreign Minister Christian Pineau are determined to re-establish close diplomatic and trade relations with the Gomulka regime as one means of offsetting re-emergent Germany. The Poles, for their part, have quietly made it known that this would be welcome.

Warsaw wants Western support and possibly believes that dealing with Paris is less risky for a start than dealing with Washington. Trade talks have been going on here for some weeks.

In his New Year's Day message, Mollet included a special tribute to the Poles and a warm-hearted expression of traditional Franco-Polish ties. In this case, it counted for something more than the usual trite phrases about friendship normally employed between two governments when they have nothing particular to quarrel about.

France has been a consistent champion of Polish independence since the 18th century. Both Bonapartes tried to support Polish liberty against encroachment by Russia, Prussia and Austria. The independent Poland finally created by the Treaty of Versailles was saved from the invading Red Army in 1921 by the French general, Weygand. And, of course, France went to war in 1939 to live up to pledges given Poland.

Thinking Aloud

of shoes and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

I suppose it is difficult to write or speak of Adolf Hitler objectively; he was a Satan who brought misery to the world, although no worse than Russian counterparts who somehow manage to find plenty of apologists.

The evil that men do lives after them, they say, so it is poetic justice that Hitler's name should imply scorn or mediocrity; the funny thing, however, is that so often it's not his own name that's used but Schickelgruber.

Hitler is too short a name for conveying contempt. I daresay, you have to bite it off sharply, whereas Schickelgruber can be rolled along the tongue with satisfying distaste.

That was excusable during the war when any device was handy to discredit the enemy, but even then the truth is his name wasn't Schickelgruber. That was his father's name before the latter changed it to Hitler.

Adolf himself was never anything but Hitler.

It's foolish to perpetuate the habit, really, even in order to enjoy spleen. It is rather tough also on those who bear the name of Schickelgruber, and there must be some of this ilk around Austria or Bavaria.

Only yesterday I was reading an article by a journalist who, talking of his work and hobbies, confessed to being a bit of a painter, adding "after the school of Schickelgruber, not that of Churchill."

He was being facetious as well as modest, for I'm sure he'd feel insulted if compared to Hitler in any particular. His point was that Hitler wasn't as good a painter as Churchill.

Neither he was. I understand that Hitler, early on, dabbled in water colors and painted postcards he couldn't sell, which actually was a sad calamity. Better far that his neurosis had expressed itself on canvas than, later, where it did.

Names and rank go together and here also a continuing desire to disparage Hitler takes an irrational tack.

During the war sarcasm got fine employment by referring to the Nazi leader as "Corporal" Hitler. Now he had been a corporal, true enough, in the first war; and maybe an efficient one at that. The German N.C.O. system was as good as any and better than most.

The idea, of course, was that by using "corporal" as an epithet this would denigrate his military prowess as Fuehrer.

Tough on the countless sturdy corporals on both sides, nevertheless.

Strange, too, thinking of another dictator. Napoleon never was a corporal, but in his heyday he was dubbed one in admiration; Hitler once was a corporal but in his heyday the dub on him was a sneer.

The Britannica, I notice, edition of 1953, still holds his one-time humble military rank against him in this way.

Spleen certainly dies hard.

Better for the world that it should in his case and that Hitler remain as an example of infamy—but under his own name.

After all, except that he sired Adolf, the shoemaker who was Schickelgruber wasn't to blame for the Third Reich.

Reports from Ottawa

PARLIAMENT got off to a new start last week in rare good humor, which is somewhat surprising after the rancor and bitterness of the 1956 session.

Last spring, at the end of the pipeline debate, it had seemed certain that Grits and Tories would do nothing but snarl, snap and spit at one another for the rest of this Parliament. But not so. They came together last week like two basketball squads coming onto the floor for a championship game. Team spirit was high. Determination to score and win was evident on both sides, but there seemed to be no personal animosity.

One reason was that they had broken the ice in the brief emergency session in November. Another was the absence of George Drew, the man who led the fight against the pipeline legislation and who moved the motion of censure against Speaker Rene Beaudoin. When Beaudoin read the notice of Drew's resignation as an MP, it seemed to many that it was the end of a chapter in parliamentary history; a chapter which the MPs who had lived it would not reread with relish.

But more important was that this is election year, with new issues and new problems. The past is done, and the real fight lies ahead.

John Diefenbaker in his new role as Tory leader evoked the keenest interest. His style is quite different from that to which the House has become accustomed during Drew's tenure. Where Drew drew a cuffless Diefenbaker's weapon is the delicate rapier so masterfully handled that even Prime Minister St. Laurent smiled his acknowledgment of "touché" several times during the first encounter.

As a phrase-coiner, Diefenbaker has few peers in the Commons. His "resolute irresolution" to describe the government's position on the CPR strike was needlesharp. He also has a nice sense of humor that Drew wholly lacked.

An example was his comment that some cabinet ministers sitting near Foreign Minister Pearson had "rather hoped" Pearson would become secretary-general of NATO. Diefenbaker obviously meant Health Minister Martin, who has been panting after Pearson's job for years, and also possibly Secretary of State Pinard, who recently has been snubbing for Pearson at the UN.

Pearson, Finance Minister Harris and other cabinet ministers laughed heartily; the comment was as well aimed. Pinard grinned weakly. Martin was absent. Immigration Minister Pickersgill, a lack-humor man who tries far too hard to be witty, protested that he wasn't one who had so hoped.

"I wasn't referring to my hon. friend," Diefenbaker shot back in a tone that said Pickersgill flattered himself by assuming he was a potential foreign minister.

Diefenbaker, strained and nervous during the Tory convention, is now calm and composed, which augurs well for his being able to bear the load of responsibility that goes with his office.

The PM too is obviously in excellent health, and at 75 it is politically important to him to have the voters know this. In commenting on the resignation of Sir Anthony Eden, a youngster of 59, because of poor health, St. Laurent seemed fighting against a desire to flex his muscles and barrel his chest to show his own superb condition.

General consensus of MPs: a short session and a lively one, but not, they hope, another bitter one.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

ONE of my real old pipe smoking friends has come up with an interesting new angle on the introduction of smoking into England and Europe in the 16th century.

"Smoking," he says, "was taken up popularly as a preservative. In the 16th century, the only way you could preserve meat, other than pickling in salt, was by smoking it. Every home had its hams smoking up the fireplace. The only way fish could be preserved was in salt barrels or smoked, like kippers. Therefore, when the first travellers came home from America they told about the Indians who looked kippared, and brought home the Indian's pipe and tobacco."

"Naturally, the idea took on promptly. Everybody decided to get kippared."

It sounds very plausible. But there is still another little-publicized aspect of the growth in popularity of smoking. It concealed the personal odors of the smokers. As you know, after the Romans left apart all over Europe, and the dirty old Huns and Goths came down out of the north, sewn up in their undergarments, bathing fell into disuse. For centuries bathing was considered dangerous, effeminate and also disagreeable. In the 15th century, when burning tobacco arrived in Britain and Europe, it was just another and a new device for concealing odors. Ladies, for example, used sachet and carried pomanders in little string reticules to wave in front of them, like censers, when conversing with their gentlemen and lady friends. A pomander was an orange, stuck with cloves and allowed to dry, affording a pleasant and strong scent. You have seen pictures of those lordly gentlemen of the 17th century, bewigged and walking with long ebony canes, which they waved gracefully as they walked. Well, in the head of each of these long ceremonial canes was a pomander box, a little perforated box full of perfume. So, the really big problem of those times was the concealment of the fact that everybody needed a good hot bath.

From earliest times, the idea of incense was to send up a pleasant odor to the Most High, and to conceal, also, the smell of congregation. How natural, therefore, that smoking when introduced was immediately seized upon as a form of social incense.

Not many of us of the first war generation are left now to remember what a trench dugout smell like. It smelt, I imagine, something like the 16th century.

Certainly we longed for our boxes from home. And how eagerly we lit up the smokes they contained.

On the Record

Neither War Nor Peace

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

KARACHI—We've moved far from Cairo since I interviewed Nasser there, but I wish to go back to some of the things he said. He denied that he had ever had any intention to destroy Israel—clearly meaning by military force. But neither was he making a peace overture.

I have never found a responsible Arab leader who has advocated war on Israel. But that doesn't mean that they are prepared to make peace except on their own terms, which are the withdrawal of Israel to the frontiers set by the 1947 UN partition plan or some readjustments amounting to the same thing, and international guarantees that Israel will respect them.

Arab leaders and people are afraid of Israel, and Israel's victory in Sinai (however rationalized) hasn't made them less so. Arab leaders would accept, I think, abandoning fedayeen raids which have strengthened Israel's case and injured the Arabs in UN, and welcome a real UN force to keep the frontiers pacified. But the effective weapon in their cold war has been the blockade—refusal to have any diplomatic or commercial relations with the country, or open the Suez Canal to Israeli shipping.

The practical, operational question confronting the UN is what means except force can be used to break this deadlock of neither war nor peace—and whether the UN Assembly can be marshalled for any program now being considered or proposed via trial balloons in the American and British press.

The United States by taking the lead to stop the war (much to the advantage of Egypt) has assumed responsibility (and advertised the intention) to bring peace to the Middle East by settling the Arab-Israeli question where every previous effort has failed. Yet it has been impossible for this columnist so far to discover any new element in the picture to encourage that hope.

The problem, like all great problems, is emotionally sparked and compounded by hatred and fear. There is no spirit of compromise in the air.

In Israel there are groups who, following the lead of the late Judah Magnes, have recognized from the beginning that in the long run Israel's peace, prosperity, and very survival do not depend on her influence with the great powers or the perpetual streaming in of the results of fundraising campaigns abroad, but upon her relations with her Arab neighbors, for which sacrifices are advisable.

But these have not made or greatly influenced Israeli policy. The leadership has been in the hands of militant nationalists who believe that Arab resistance, in whatever form, can be broken only by force and a dictated peace. Israel is dominated by contempt for the Arabs, whom, as a military force, they do not fear. In and out of Israel the view is current: "We are a small country, but one Israel is worth 30 Arabs whether as a soldier or state organizer."

Were the Arab resistance merely the policy of Arab governments, an acceptable settlement could be anticipated with more hope. But fear and hatred of Israel is a consuming personal passion. In all classes of the Arab world it has the emotional intensity of a sacred cause, and is strongest among the most highly educated.

Egypt is Arab linguistically, but Nasser spoke to me of his difficulties in getting into the constitution the statement that "Egypt is part of the Arab nation," commenting that there were many "isolationists" in Egypt.

I am sure that is true. Egypt's leadership of the Arab world stems from many factors, among them that nearly half of the Arabic-speaking peoples are Egyptian. But Damascus, Baghdad or Riyadh are more Arab in feeling than Cairo or Alexandria—two of the world's most cosmopolitan and sophisticated cities, with tens of thousands each of Jews and Greeks—and thousands of Italians, White Russians, and other nationalities. Egyptian memory and pride, enshrined in Egypt's fabulous antiquities, go back to fit-off epochs of imperial grandeur and culture long predating Egypt's Arabization. The Egyptian peasant never says, "I am an Arab," but "I am an Egyptian." A student from Damascus or Aleppo says, "I am an Arab—from Syria."

I have found also more spontaneous and vehement Nasser enthusiasts among Syrians, Saudis and, of course, Palestinians, than among Egyptians. It is hard to put one's finger on but Egyptians rarely open a conversation with the Israel question whereas other Arabs invariably do nor do they rush to call Nasser the greatest Arab since Mahomet. The Egyptian spirit is more skeptical.

Nasser (it seems to me) could not promise on the Israel question without serious domestic repercussions than most Arab leaders. But he would thereby pass his position throughout the Arab world to other leaders.

Thin Edge of the Wedge

There is a petition to the Crown by the CPR that the company be relieved of some of its obligations in the matter of agreement existing between the Crown and the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway.

This is the thin edge of the wedge, and before any conclusion there should be a royal commission of inquiry to examine into the whole situation and the relations between the people and the railroad in the original and subsequent grants.

Pay Cut in Order

When I read the account of Saanich council's inaugural meeting I could not help but feel that Mr. Austin's demand for an apology from the reeve showed very clearly who came first in his estimation. I doubt that any taxpayer gives a hoot whether or not apology is ever made. Mr. Austin was given a mandate by the people, but it was to perform a service to the community, certainly not to compete with TV.

If any apology is due I suggest that one be made to the people of Saanich for the pitifully poorly planned and managed public works by last year's chairman.

If the present clowning and buffoonery are to continue all year I'd suggest a further pay cut in order, because it is certain enough that the present nonsense is not only worth nothing but is costing the people of Saanich plenty, in more ways than one.

Universally 'Elected'

In tribute to the late E. E. Winch, M.L.A., every British Columbian and hundreds of other Canadians will know the deepest sense of loss at his demise, for here was a man of great stature by the highest statesmanship measurement. He knew only one shade of truth and that was impregnable.

He used his office to serve in the warmest responsive manner, and any help he gave—which was extensive—was given under a cloak of genuine modesty, the recipient made to feel that he, not Mr. Winch, had granted the privilege. Totally lacking in flamboyance, pomposity or self-appreciation, he nevertheless moved with dignified pride, objectively yet close to any call upon his efforts or ability to give. His son follows closely in his footsteps, which must have been his deepest joy.

We shall all be poorer at his absence, and lost, for the moment, will be a valuable steadiness that upheld the provincial House. Others there are in the legislature who will rise more quickly due to the inspiration of Mr. Winch, for he was universally "elected" in the hearts and minds of all political parties, and we Liberals loved him.

Pensioners Come Last

The Hungarian refugee question needs some explanation. I got a letter from Vancouver on the question and the party said the same as I feel myself about the whole thing.

Our own image pensioners and our poor should be the first consideration. We all feel sympathetic with the Hungarian patriots and wish them well; but if St. Laurent or any other top brass can board and room the refugees for $40 a month, which they are paying their old-age pensioners. I'll be perfectly willing to admit I'm wrong.

The only difference between Hungary and Canada is that we are not being used as cannon fodder; but our old-age pensioners are gradually being starved to death, so what's the difference? One is a quick death and the other a lingering one.

Fishing in the Gorge

The removal of the runway beneath the Gorge Bridge, without the promised renewal in concrete, was a blunder. Surveyors marked out the work a year past but nothing has been done since. The defective posts and stringers could have been replaced under $100.

This runway was always occupied in winter by mostly old-time herring fishermen who are now confined to one small float, mostly out of the herring run. On fine days sometimes from 50 to 200 spectators stand by. This is an annual enjoyment for these men, who are too old to hunt and find this their greatest pleasure. Tourists and locals stopped their cars to go down and view the falls at low tide. This runway should be replaced immediately. Trout fishing is good there in the fall.

Noisy Minority

I think I am entitled to reply to Mr. Jenkins' letter of Jan. 12. I am sorry to say that Mr. Jenkins is an example of a small minority of the trade unions who are noisy in their demands on the public purse. I am glad to say that the average trade unionist is satisfied with his security and standard of living as it is today; but this noisy minority could not be satisfied whatever their conditions might be, and they took upon their employer as a person or persons to be despised, whoever they may be.

Does Mr. Jenkins realize that the public at large is the biggest employer of labor? Who does he think pays the salaries of the civic employees, the police, firemen, school teachers, dockyard workers, postal employees, the federal and provincial employees, and not forgetting the armed forces, etc.? It is Mr. Jenkins who should study his economics, not I, and I repeat, unless the unions curtail their demands on the public purse, they will cut their own throats.

Chou Pulls the Strings

SEN. JOSEPH MCCARTHY and newly-adopted child.

LONDON—Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai is behind a move to shift Soviet communist boss Nikita S. Khrushchev into the premiership of Soviet Russia to make life easier for communists outside the iron curtain.

Reports said the shakeup, if it comes, probably would include a big promotion for premier Georgi Malenkov.

WASHINGTON—Senator and Mrs. Joseph McCarthy proudly introduced their newly-adopted baby, five-week-old Tierpey Elizabeth.

OTTAWA—George Hahn (SC—New Westminster) said yesterday Parliament should not prorogue or adjourn until it has passed legislation to "prevent lock-outs or closures or strikes in the future."

LONDON—The Queen will see the Duke of Edinburgh for the first time in four months next month in Rome.

OTTAWA—Irvin Studer, Saskatchewan Liberal, characterized Social Credit theory Monday as a hodge-podge of political theories discarded years ago by other civilizations.

TOKYO—A girl crept into the wings of a vast variety theatre and hurled a bottle of sulphuric acid into the face of a leading singer-actress, Hibari Misora, possibly disfiguring her for life.

MONACO—Princess Grace of Monaco and her mother were reunited in a parked car after an anxious few minutes at the airport where they missed each other.

LONDON—Former Prime Minister Anthony Eden and Lady Eden will leave Friday for New Zealand.

Northspan Active

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market eased Monday in lighter trading.

Labrador and Hudson's Bay were the heavier losers, each dipping 1/2. Gains were less than 1/2.

Northspan gained 20 cents but was ahead 70 cents at one time at a new high of $7.10. Can-Met Explorations added 1/2.

Royalty featured early western oil trading with a gain of 1/2 to a new high of 20. During the week-end the company announced it plans to spend $50,000,000 to develop the rich Athabasca tar sands.

Grain Prices

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prices showed a firmer tone. Rices increased activity in grain trade with the resumption of railway movement on the CPR lines.

Oats and barley trade was mostly of a domestic shipping nature with some hedging in oats.

Prices moved narrowly.

Pipelines Ease

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges were mixed throughout most of a moderate industrial session Monday. Prices took on a firm look in the first-hour but slipped back.

Algonia dropped 4 points while other steels firmed fractionally. Refining oils eased narrowly as B.A. lost 1/2. Pipe Lines were mixed with Trans Mountain up 1/2 and Interprovincial off a similar fraction.

U.S. Stocks Slip

NEW YORK (AP) — Steels and other metals took sharp losses Monday as the stock market suffered its worst setback in almost two months.

Glenn L. Martin was the most active stock, up 1 1/2 at 44 1/2 on 4,000 shares. Second was General Motors, up 1/2 at 41 1/2 on 35,000 shares.

Reduction Expected

LONDON (Reuters) — Last week's upward trend in the London stock market continued with increased vigor and a substantial list of gains was established.

Although the cabinet appointments helped sentiment, the main impetus behind the advance was the increasing prominence with which bank rate talk now figures in market conversation. Most people are looking for a reduction.

Dividends Declared

BRANFORD CORP. (B.C.) 12 1/2 cents per share, March 1, record paid 4 cents.

GRATIA CORP. (B.C.) 10 cents per share, March 1, record paid 2 cents in January, 1956.

Egg Market

For the first nine months of 1956 Aluminum Ltd. is reported to have made a profit of $42,325,000 (equal to $42.3 a share). Earnings and sales are at a record level.

Northwest Pipeline

El Paso Bids for Merger

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

Shareholders of Pacific Northwest Pipeline Corporation this weekend received a formal offer to exchange their shares into those of El Paso Natural Gas Company.

The deal which was approved recently by the shareholders of El Paso, will give Pacific Northwest shareholders the right to 14 El Paso B. common shares for each eight Pacific Northwest. The offer expires Feb. 8.

Because Pacific Northwest holds 25 per cent of the shares of Westcoast Transmission, and is the company which holds the contract to buy Canadian gas for distribution in the western United States, many Canadians are interested directly or indirectly in the big merger.

The deal will be completed if 80 per cent of the common shares of Pacific Northwest are offered for the exchange.

The importance of the deal is that the merger will make El Paso by a long way the largest natural gas distributor in the west. It will link the Canadian gasfields with an organization that supplies, directly or indirectly, the whole of California and populous areas of New Mexico, Arizona, Oklahoma, Colorado, Utah, Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

It is expected that as demands for natural gas increase, and U.S. reserves dwindle, El Paso will make increasing requests for Canadian gas.

The shares which are offered to holders of Pacific Northwest are identical with the new common shares of El Paso except that they will not be eligible for dividends until the end of 1957.

Both shares will trade on the New York stock exchange. Yesterday El Paso was quoted at $29 1/2, it having been split two-for-one during the past few days.

Trail Prices Cut

Consolidated Mining and Smelting announced yesterday it was reducing its prices of lead and zinc. Lead has been dropped by one-quarter cent to 15 1/2 cents a pound, while zinc is down three-quarter cents to $14.10 a pound, with high grade down half a cent at 14 1/2 cents a pound. The price of western zinc remains unchanged at 13 1/2 cents a pound.

The lower prices reflect the premium position of the Canadian dollar rather than a world-wide drop in prices. To remain competitive with U.S. producers Canadians have to sell at least four per cent lower — the difference between the Canadian and U.S. dollars.

Taking Stock...
Planning Ahead

Perhaps you are a "beginning" investor, who has been accumulating savings, and have been wondering how to get started on a sound investment programme, or... may be you have already started by buying a few securities without a programme and have been wondering if you are on the right track...

Perhaps you are an "advanced" investor and have been wondering if your present list of securities is the one now best suited to the purpose you have in mind...

Perhaps you are an even more "experienced" investor and have been thinking you would like to get an outside opinion as to the suitability of this security or that in your particular scheme of things...

Perhaps you are any one of the above... or just an investor with a problem and a desire to talk things over...

The end of one year and the beginning of another is traditionally a time for taking stock and planning ahead. There are experienced friendly people in our organization who will help you do just that.

If you would like to talk over your particular situation, you will be welcome in any of our offices, either personally or by mail.

City Resident Dies in U.S.

Reginald Mylrea, 69, a resident of Victoria for 40 years, has died in Los Angeles, according to information received in Victoria yesterday.

He was visiting his mother, 88, and a daughter, Violet, in California.

Born in London, England, Mr. Mylrea served with the old Northwest Mounted Police and the Royal Canadian Engineers. He was on the staff of the Queen's Printer in Victoria until he retired in 1954.

Mr. Mylrea is survived by his mother and daughter, a son, Frank, in Yellowknife, a brother, Phil, in Victoria, and four sisters in Los Angeles. Another son, John, was killed during the second World War in the RCAF.

Williston Raps Power Proposal

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston has disagreed with a recommendation in the Gordon report that a national energy authority be established to regulate exports of oil, gas, hydro-electric energy and other power sources.

He said the province must not alienate its resources by placing them under a federal control.

Mr. Williston said he was against export of power.

Last night's hockey game had to go without an announcement of a Greater Victoria "courtesy driver."

They're just not so easy to find that one may be produced when the Colours play at home.

"Courtesy" in the case of a driver, is made up of about equal parts of care and attention—and police courts are currently extra busy with cases of people who have driven "without due care and attention."

In other words, there are too many careless drivers. Police of Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt are still watching for the courteous drivers, for they, with Woodward Stores (Victoria) Ltd. and of "Victoria paying the shot where Greater Victoria benefits" if the city granted the request of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria for assistance in maintaining its grounds.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgell said

Parks committee decided to inform the gallery that the city was not prepared to grant the request, and to suggest the gallery seek help from all the municipalities.

Three Goals in 63 Seconds Start Cougars on 7-1 Rout

Few Fans on Hand As Royals Beaten

Unable to get a single shot past Bev Bentley on Saturday night, Victoria Cougars drove three pucks past the New Westminster goalkeeper in 63 seconds last night at Memorial Arena, finally wound up with a 7-1 win over the battered Royals.

Result left the Cougars still three points behind Royals, holding down third place in the Western Division of the Western Hockey League, but it would seem in imminent danger of being caught unless they can get some help.

Royals lost Blinky Boyce, their little sparkplug winger, for several weeks about 10 days ago and they may have lost veteran Ollie Dorohoy for a few games last night.

Dorohoy had to be helped off the ice after being carried into the Victoria goal by Nelson Bullock. Extent of his injuries was not known immediately but it was feared he had a cracked rib.

Announced attendance was 1,667, believed to be the smallest crowd in Victoria's professional hockey history.

Most of the action last night was packed into the first five minutes, which saw two of the games eight penalties and three rapid-fire goals by the Cougars which decided it right there.

STARTS SPILL

Cougars had just killed off a penalty to Lionel Heinrich when Wayne Brown tried to split the defense. He got hung up in the middle and the puck slid toward Bentley. Bullock moved in for a hard shot and the puck dropped to the ice off Bentley's skates and slid over the line.

Sixteen seconds later, Carmichael took a pass from Bill Davidson and broke in quickly on the left wing to backhand past Bentley. Less than a minute later, Brown slapped his high hard one past the coolish Bentley with Ron Matthews of the Royals in the penalty box for interference.

Carmichael got his second goal of the game, and 18th of the season, before a rookie Denny Olson whacked a rebound past Marcel Pelletier to deprive the Victoria goalkeeper of his fourth shutout.

Macaulay boosted his WHL total to 99 goals with his 13th this season. Heinrich got his first and Chupka his third to complete the scoring.

BOOSTS TOTAL

Brown, who became the 12th player to reach 20 goals this season, picked up three assists as well to boost his point total to 35.

The game marked the first action of the season for Gordie Wilson. The big centre, who will be a big help to the Cougars if he has no recurrence of the knee injury which forced removal of a cartilage, had three or four turns on the ice as a test and reported after the game that "it felt good to be on the ice."

Wilson, coach Colin Kilburn reported, will continue in a utility role until he is ready to take his regular turn.

Cougars play at Vancouver Friday and New Westminster Saturday and host the Royals here next Monday. Brandon Regals are here the following Friday and then it's the third and final, tour of the Prairies.

AMSTERDAM (Reuters) — The Royal Dutch Skating Association has decided not to compete in the European and world speed skating championships of 1957 if Russian skaters take part.

With two games left for each rink it appeared certain that a playoff, perhaps involving three rinks, would be needed.

However, the sixth draw left it up to Folk and Wilson to decide honors in a sudden-death battle for the trip to Nelson and the next step on the road that leads to the Dominion championships.

While Folk was pulling away from Port Alberni's Harry Spotswood in the middle ends, Harper was having his hands full with Young, and Gutoski and Wilson were having a nip-and-tuck fight to avoid elimination.

With Folk home free, Young made certain no playoff was needed by upsetting Harper, 8-6. The Duncan skip missed by an inch in playing his last rock on the button for the point which would have forced an extra end.

Meanwhile, the Gutoski rink missed chances to take a big lead against Wilson on the first six ends and found that a 5-3 advantage wasn't enough for the last half of the game.

AHEAD TO STAY
Led by Wilson, who only missed once on the last six ends,

On Sunday, Robbins gave Butlers a 2-1 lead with a pair of goals in the first half and counted once in the second half along with Dick Nellistyn. George Wright scored once in each half for Tilllicums.

In Sunday's other game, Heaneys overcame a 2-1 half-time deficit to edge Punjab United, 3-2, at Heywood Avenue Park for their first victory in second-half play.

Darrell Burley scored twice to pull the game out for the Carriagemen. Abtar Singh and Henri Vanderhoof scored for Punjab in the first half with Ron Pederson replying for Heaneys.

Victoria Meeting

Old Army Pals—
One's a Swami,
One's a Count

Swami Agehananda Bharati, the Viennese-born abbot of a Hindu religious order, has been reunited with a friend he last saw in Vienna 14 years ago.

In 1943 Swami Agehananda was Pte. Leonard Fisher in a recruiting unit of the Wehrmacht, the German army. One of his friends at that time was Ricci Cicciomarra, a member of an old Austrian family.

One night last week the two men met again. In the meantime Leonard Fisher had become Swami Agehananda Bharati, the only white man among 100,000 Indian members of the Saanyasi order of monks and Ricci Cicciomarra had succeeded to his father's title, Count Cicciomarra.

Over dinner at the home of Count and Countess Cicciomarra, 1585 Rockland, the two old friends reminisced over what they had done since 1943.

Swami Agehananda has met a number of people and received seven letters since his story was published in The Daily Colonist. He says Victoria residents are neither as conventional nor as reserved as they are painted.

Four of the letters were "positive" and three were "negative"—written by people who disagree strongly with his religion.

One, written in green ink partly underlined in red pencil, and with verses from the Bible on red, blue and green paper pasted between the handwritten paragraphs, he described as highly morbid.

Swami Agehananda will lecture to Victoria's Sikh community at the Sikh Temple on Topaz each Sunday at 2 p.m.

Old Debate Renewed

Tearroom in the Park?

The attorney-general's department may be asked soon to settle the long debate over whether or not concessions, such as a tearoom or restaurant, can be operated in Beacon Hill Park.

Parks committee decided yesterday to ask city council to authorize the city solicitor to seek from the attorney-general's department an interpretation of the park trust deed.

In each of the last three years, Parks Administrator W. H. Warren told the committee, a decision had been made to seek such an interpretation and each time "it died without anyone seeing the government."

Attd. Elmer McEwen said he had made personal inquiries last year and had been told that the city had every right to use the park "in any way it wanted as long as it didn't interfere with the rights of others."

For instance, he said, a restaurant couldn't be erected on grounds being used for sports.

What's next on the birthday list but cards. Of greeting cards various, EATON'S has 1,400, all different, on the Main Floor. Broken down into various types, we found that there are a mere 79 different birthday cards for you to choose from. There are cards for specific ages (we couldn't find one for anyone coming 'round to 39 for the third time—but there's one that can be set for almost any age from 16 to 85). Cards for every relative from husbands to sisters-in-law. Couldn't find one for mother-in-law—either the mothers-in-law union should take this up, or we should look harder. If you've just remembered someone and it's already too late, we counted 30 different belated birthday greetings. Yes, we said THIRTY!

So—the gift is wrapped, the card is written. What's next—the party, of course. And EATON'S has a Party Shop, as you may know, devoted to the proposition that parties should be fun. Party hats—for sure, in sizes to suit midgets or monsters, including a classy fez for (presumably) junior Shriners. Balloons, not just plain round, but long and wiggly, cat's heads complete with ears, and, how suitable, one type which has "Happy Birthday" printed right on it. For harassed mothers (and others) who wonder how to keep the tablecloth in reasonable shape, there are paper tablecloths and napkins and all birthday sentiments inscribed thereon.

While in the Party Shop we noticed the cake decorations. No need to sign for a professional cake decorator when all you need do is pop these noble creations on your newly frosted cake. Each set contains candles, candle-holders, various minor decorations and the words "Happy Birthday," all edible too (bar the candles, unless you happen to have a dash of Eskimo blood). Do we see a tired smile back there in the third row? Do we hear "Decorations fine, but the real work is in the baking, and the sandwich-making." Then take heart, for even this problem can be solved at EATON'S. Just visit the Hostess Shop on the Main Floor and let someone else do the worrying and the work! Whether the party is for child or adult, the catering experts there will supply everything needed in the food line—and deliver it where and when required. With EATON'S help, it can't help but be a Happy Birthday—both for the celebrant and everyone else!

Alderman Reports
On Torrid Issue

The trades licence system of collecting business revenues must be maintained here, but revised to wipe out "definite inequalities," Ald. Austin Curtis recommended yesterday.

No action on the hot issue should be taken until the provincial legislature passes the new Municipal Act, but Curtis should start turning now to implement some formula with out delay, he said in a one-man report to city council.

Mr. Curtis disputed argument of Ald. Donald Smith in favor of immediate imposition of a graduated business tax. He said it would cost too much to impose—probably $40,000 the first year.

And he clearly stated that increased revenues out of which he proposed a $1,000 increase in annual grant to the Victoria and Island Public Health Board would accrue to the city this year.

Aldermen Curtis and Smith and seven members of a special committee on revenue, however, revision and proposed business tax on which Ald. Smith fought a successful election campaign.

Refused to Sign

Committee chairman Ald. Smith brought in a report Jan. 7 which Ald. Curtis refused to sign. It demanded immediate imposition of a graduated business tax with additional revenue to be added on one year.

He said he was not prepared to sign a report which would increase the city's tax burden by $40,000 a year.

Ald. Smith claimed then that any change this year in the taxation setup was doomed by the "merry-go-round" tactic.

Ald. Curtis, while pointing out the business tax proposal, said that if the city council refused to sign it, he would be forced to do so.

He said he was not prepared to sign a report which would increase the city's tax burden by $40,000 a year.

Revisions to Act

The provincial legislature will next month be to have before it revisions to the Municipal Act which may suggest a formula for a new business tax.

It is believed that the new legislation will give municipalities more power in this respect, he added.

It did not seem necessary to Ald. Curtis that some business should be protected by federal law from paying the fees "and it does not appear that such business would be seriously affected by a change in status."

Mr. Curtis pointed out that city businessmen in 1923 agreed to a "very heavy increase in licence fees"—some 50 per cent—if the publicity bureau was granted a minimum of $25,000 a year.

Present grant to the bureau is $10,000, but on purchase power this amount is much less today than the amount agreed upon in 1923.

The bureau is doing valuable work for the city, he said.

Victoria companies, particularly those in western Canada, are not paying the same rates as those in the east.

Back Home to the Pound

"Pounds aren't so hard to come by," said a back Labrador who wants to adopt an owner. "Pound escaped from his cage at the SPCA shelter, 111 Wilson Street, a few days ago, but returned by himself in 24 hours. 'It makes me think the dogs feel at home here,' said Civil McRoberts, SPCA inspector who holds Prince and notes where he chose the door of his cage to free himself. He wouldn't let us where he went," Mr. McRoberts added. "Perhaps he had a friend around the corner. Anyway, he hasn't applied for another 24-hour pass yet." Prince requires a good country home. (Colonist photo by Ted Harris)

Saanich Avoids Issue
Of Trading Stamps

Saanich council last night refused to get embroiled in the battle over trading stamps.

In fact, council instead referred the matter to the municipal solicitors to determine whether council could legislate enforcement of a law already on federal books.

The question came up following the reading of a brief submitted on behalf of the Victoria Association of Commerce and Industry.

The association, which is a group of merchants, is concerned with the infiltration of trading stamp schemes as a "vicious and often fraudulent practice which can do much to harm the local economy."

Cancer Kills Bogart

Tough Guy Meets Master

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Tough After that, he underwent extensive radiation treatments. In November, he was treated for nerve pain. He died at his home at the age of 56.

The poker-faced veteran of Hollywood, a prize winner, came one of Hollywood's finest actors and most noted characters. He died at the peak of his career. He had won Hollywood's highest prize, the Academy Award, and was one of a handful of stars who could command top money — $250,000 a picture.

Bogart was a hard, dignified, prankish, extroverted whose heart was as soft as his screen lines were hard.

Early Sunday he fell into a coma and never emerged. His physician Dr. Maynard Brandeis said death came from a general spread of the original cancer.

Last March doctors removed a cancer from Bogart's esophagus.

He loved to do things up — to be an exciting enough person — to touch a nerve. And how he did it.

He was. He explained how he did it. That stuff, he said, became a character. "By doing it the only way to get publicity was I damned please."

The Diesel Issue!

The following statement was made at Ottawa, January 11, 1957, by N. R. Crump, President, Canadian Pacific Railway:

"Service on Canadian Pacific will be restored as quickly as safe operation of the lines can be assured and in some areas trains will be operating within a matter of hours; the longer delay in other areas will be caused by snow and winter conditions but it will not be long before the public has full Canadian Pacific service once again.

"From the outset of our differences with the Firemen's Union, Canadian Pacific has been motivated by its duty to provide safe, economical and what I consider to be truly efficient railway service. Finality of labour disputes is essential to railway transportation such as we provide; Canadian Pacific thought in order to bring that finality about any inquiry must be binding. Under the terms of the settlement reached there will be a judicial inquiry into the Diesel issue, as well as two subsidiary issues. There is no agreement that makes the decision binding but the Prime Minister and his colleagues, who have had much experience, stated in the House as well as to the parties concerned in the dispute that after the investigation which is now being arranged finality will be achieved. I have accepted this assessment.

"Thousands of Canadian Pacific customers have demonstrated in the last few days great patience and understanding. I do thank them for this and particularly for the many messages of encouragement they sent me.

"To all employees of Canadian Pacific, the strike has been a difficult period. On their return to work I know they, as in the past, will meet the challenge of providing to the public transportation service worthy of the great traditions of Canadian Pacific."

Daily Astrology

TUESDAY, JAN. 15, 1957

Today's quotation: "A good name is better than precious ointment." Ecclesiastes 7:1

Look for Your Birthdate and Birthsign Below

April 20 to May 20 (Taurus) — Watch your step, avoid arguments, prevent misunderstandings.

May 21 to June 20 (Gemini) — Guard possessions, avoid upsets concerning assets; brusqueness with friends.

June 21 to July 22 (Cancer) — Sidestep personal tasks, upsets. Be tactful, careful regarding business, superiors.

July 23 to Aug. 22 (Leo) — Recheck judgment; avoid false impressions, prevent upsets, haste in plans.

Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 (Virgo) — Use discretion with friends, watch accounts, finances; avoid worry, unwise shifts.

Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 (Libra) — Adhere to the accepted order, keep changes, avoid instability; shun enemies.

Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 (Scorpio) — Be careful in motion;
avoid false moves, sidestep impulse, tactlessness, upsets.

Nov. 22 to Dec. 31 (Sagittarius) — Avoid changes upsets in finances, shun risks; be calm, sensible with loved ones.

Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 (Capricorn) — Be careful of upsets with associates. Reach no final conclusions; repress outbursts.

Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 (Aquarius) — Prevent upsets regarding career, health. Be on the safe side in speech, withhold opinion, avoid rash.

Feb. 19 to March 20 (Pisces) — Avoid emotionism, hazards. The caution, thoughtful, don't spend in haste.
Planning ahead, Guard for entertaining sociability the Jan. 18 to 24, 26 to 31.

Funeral Rites Wednesday For Minister

Funeral services for Rev. Henry Earle, 77, will be held in Christ Church Cathedral at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Mr. Earle died in Royal Jubilee Hospital Saturday. He was an Anglican minister who retired to Victoria 11 years ago. His last parish was St. Mark's at Parkside, Ontario. Mr. Earle is survived by his widow, Dorothy, 1180 St. Louis; three sons, Canon Cecil Earle of Hull, Quebec, Basil and Norman of Toronto; a daughter, Mrs. W. B. Fee of Ottawa; a sister and a brother.

Funeral arrangements are being handled by Chaplin's Funeral Home.

TUNIS (AP)—Tunisian authorities said Saturday a low-flying French plane machine-gunned a group of Tunisian women working in a field near Shellia, killing one and wounding three others.

Officials prepared a protest to French commanders while Tunisian government and French embassy officials launched an investigation.

News of Sidney

Merchants Want Car Queue

SIDNEY — Beacon Avenue merchants are fighting a suggestion that the line-up of cars waiting for the Anacortes ferry be shifted to a back street.

The newly elected Sidney last week to write to the ferry operators, Washington State Ferries, asking their co-operation in removing what was considered a safety hazard.

But the merchants of Sidney's Beacon Avenue claim that without the tourist trade they get from the auto line-up they could not carry large enough stocks to satisfy local residents' needs over the rest of the year.

Spokesman for the merchants, R. F. Cornish, owner of a lending library, said that if the line-up was shifted to a back street it would be ruinous to Beacon Avenue merchants.

"It is only when the line-up is in front of our stores that we get the full benefit of the tourist trade, which is all that keeps us in business. Everyone in North Saanich is affected."

Former village commission chairman Herbert Bradley said the matter had been under continuous study for years, but that no reasonable alternative had been found.

He said the ferry company had opposed the suggested change when it was mentioned to them some time ago.

Sidney village employees are badly underpaid, according to figures which clerk A. W. Sharp prepared for the commission at the request of the chairman.

Lowest paid village clerk on the Island, apart from Sidney, gets $325 per month, plus $30 car allowance, with a $50 raise coming Feb. 1.

The Sidney clerk gets $295 plus $30 car allowance, but his job includes building and plumbing inspection, which few other or requests will be considered by the Sidney Village Commission. Everything in future must be in writing to the village office.

Commissioner T. A. Aires

sidney Ratepayers' Association should send complaints through that body for screening before presentation to the commission.

Meeting in Sidney, members of St. Elizabeth's Altar Society elected Mrs. R. N. Shanks president, succeeding Mrs. H. Bradley.

Mrs. G. C. Johnston was elected vice-president, Miss Mary Enos secretary.

Committee chairmen are Mrs. Wallace Smart, liners; Mrs. P. T. MacNutt, health council and parishioners; Mrs. Lund, publicity; and Mrs. J. Elliott, sick committee.

A cheque for $25, paid to William Harris for work done on the church, was donated by him to the society. It was decided to use the money for construction of a baptismal font for the church.

SIDNEY — Civil defence grants offered by provincial and federal governments drew an unenviable comment from the chairman of Sidney Village Commission, Dr. C. H. Hemmings.

If the village commission spends $125 on civil defence projects it will be given an equal amount by the provincial government, and $250 by the federal government.

Puzzling over what to spend $500 on, Dr. Hemmings asked if the two governments would

Members of the Sidney Village Planning Commission received their appointments last week, with D. Sparling being named to the group for three years, G. A. Gardner for two years and W. J. Skinner for one year. All are continuing former appointments.

Village Commissioners Mrs. Vivian Cowan and Dr. C. H. Hemmings will represent the village. F. G. Gilbert continues as Saanich School District appointee.

Sidney Village commissioners have voted to discontinue acceptance of $300 annual remuneration at the end of 1957.

Any commissioner wanting the sum for this year, except the three new commissioners elected in December, must apply in writing to the village clerk before March 31.

Action is in line with the major plank in the platform of the Sidney Ratepayers' Association, on which the three new members were elected.

No more verbal complaints provide the money if the commission decided to buy $500 worth of tin hats.

Assured that they would be bigger fools than I thought they were.

"I'm loath to spend $125 of our money just to get $375 more to spend, which is also our money," he continued.

Commissioner T. A. Aires said he and 12 other CD instructors had bought supplies with their own money two years ago and were still trying to get it back.

The commission decided to reserve the right to obtain the money, if something could be found on which to spend it.

SIDNEY — Commissioner Mrs. Vivian Cowan has been named deputy chairman of the Sidney Village Commission for the next three months.

Other committees: Finance, Commissioners T. A. Aires, A. A. Cormack and Mrs. Cowan; public works, Mr. Bilgeri; by-law and publicity, Mr. Cowan; public health, Mr. Bulgeri; liaison with the RCMP, Mr. Cormack.

The magnificent new CHRYSLER '57

The new Chrysler for 1957 has most assuredly earned the distinction of being called "classic".

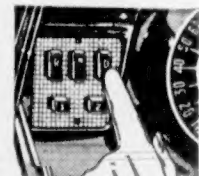

For in its long, exquisitely graceful lines there is a kind of beauty that is both timely... and timeless. A breathtaking beauty that is perfectly in harmony with today, yet possessed of an enduring quality that will make it a pleasure to see and own for many years.

And, as you'd expect, the engineering of the new Chrysler is as flawless as its styling and décor. Chrysler, this year, brings you many totally new developments, such as satin-smooth Torsion-Aire Ride... a remarkable new 3-speed automatic transmission... and greater reserves of power than ever before. See the new Chrysler soon. We know you will be pleased.

A new sense of motion is yours in the 1957 Chrysler with satin-smooth Torsion-Aire Ride. There is no feeling of leaning as you round corners, virtually no feeling of bumpiness, even on rough roads, and no uncomfortable dip of the hood when you brake.

A new pride of ownership is yours, too, with the 1957 Chrysler. For its Flight-Sweep styling reflects not only a look of superlative beauty, but also quiet good taste. It is the car for those with an intuitive appreciation for the finest.

A new feeling of smooth-harnessed power is yours with Chrysler's new fully automatic 3-speed transmission. You merely push a button on the convenient selector panel... nudge the accelerator... and ease forward with a surge of quiet, self-shifting power you can experience only in the magnificent new Chrysler.

Symes Committed for Trial on Murder Charge

Coal Found in Nanaimo City Centre

Nanaimo's coal-mining past was brought to mind when workmen demolishing the Royal Bank of Canada in the heart of the business section found it had been built atop an untapped seam of coal. Holding samples of the find are telegraph messengers Jim Hoggan and Ken Griffiths. The seam, nine inches thick and about nine feet deep, appears to run through the town.

Martin Says:

Duncan Comes First For New Hospital

Health Minister Eric Martin has collected a large sum for said yesterday a new hospital the purpose of building a hospital must be built at Duncan before it and it now appears as if one at Lake Cowichan can be the money will have to be sent back.

He was commenting on a charge levelled by Joseph A. Riley of Cowichan Lake hospital board that "bungling" by the provincial government may deprive Cowichan Lake and North Cowichan districts of adequate new hospital facilities.

"There has been no bungling; this is the way it has to be," said Mr. Martin. "The Duncan situation must be cleaned up first."

The minister said a B.C. Hospital Insurance Service report, after lengthy and comprehensive study of the needs of Vancouver Island hospitals, had decided that a new hospital should be built at Duncan but that none should be built at Lake Cowichan in the next five years.

Spinal Cord Hit By Death Bullet

BY STAN CUMMER

DUNCAN—Composed and relaxed, nodding and smiling frequently to those he knew in the court room, Thomas Sidney Symes, 31-year-old logger, heard a parade of witnesses link him to the slaying, on Jan. 1, about 5.30 in the morning, of 25-year-old Paul Richard Powling.

He was committed for trial at the spring assizes in Nanaimo.

The hearing was held in the City Council chambers, before Magistrate Col. A. C. Sutton. R. J. Harvey is crown counsel and A. I. MacDonald appeared for Symes.

Symes was so relaxed and apparently unconcerned that he appeared to be more like an interested, and at times, amused spectator than a man appearing on a charge of murder.

The killing was alleged to have occurred in a rooming house on Herbert Street, in a room which had been rented by his (Symes') wife on Boxing Day, according to the testimony of Julius Otto, keeper of the rooming house.

Dr. J. A. McConnell, who performed the autopsy, said the bullet, which caused Powling's death entered the left chest and transected the spinal cord.

Police identified a .30.30 Savage rifle as the one Symes had borrowed from a friend and later turned over to another friend after the shooting.

Hugh Bradshaw said that Symes borrowed the gun from him about 4 a.m. Jan. 1.

Henry John (Dutchy) Vonkemen, at whose place on Somers Road the accused was taken into custody by the police, said that Symes came to his home between 5 and 6 a.m. the statement was passed

5 a.m. on Jan. 1 and asked him to get up as he wanted to talk to him.

"We went into a spare bedroom," Vonkemen said. "Symes told me 'I shot Paul.' Vonkemen went on 'I told him, 'oh, don't be nuts.' 'I can show you,' Symes said, and went out and came back with the rifle. I took some shells from it and put it in my utility room," Vonkemen concluded.

Symes was taken into custody in the yard of the Vonkemen residence about 1 p.m. Jan. 1, by Sgt. William J. Curry. Sgt. Curry said that when he walked up to Symes to place his hand on him and put him under arrest, Symes said: "I have shot a man but you are not dealing with a mad dog."

At the police station, after the warrant on a charge of murdering Powling had been read to him, and the customary police warning issued, Symes wanted to make a statement, Sgt. Curry said. The statement was made and signed, and as Mr. Harvey was getting a copy ready to present to the court, Magistrate Sutton interrupted and said that this was getting into a very delicate situation.

Magistrate Sutton instructed that the statement be shown to the accused, and his lawyer, but that it be not read.

The magistrate said he was dealing with the matter in this way "to obviate any possibility of a trial in the newspapers."

At the statement was passed around to the accused it was easy to see that it was short, not more than seven or eight lines of typing and not more than 25 or 30 words.

Cpl. Eugene Dennis Westhaver, from the RCMP crime detection laboratory in Regina, testified the bullet recovered from the body of Paul Powling was fired from the .30.30 Savage rifle in exhibit.

FULLY CLOTHED

Constable William Boyd, the policeman who first visited the house where the shooting occurred, said he saw the body of a man lying "fully clothed on a bed. The shirt was pulled to one side and there was a wound in the region of the heart," in reply to a question from defence counsel, Constable Boyd said "The bed was fully made."

James William Cleough, another witness who testified to hearing from Symes that he had shot Powling, admitted that his recollections were "hazy" as he was "very drunk" following a party which he and the accused had attended on the morning of Jan. 1.

Testifying that he had seen the accused again at the Vonkemen home "between four and five in the morning" Cleough said, "He stood right in front of me, and told me he had shot Paul Powling."

In concluding his case for the crown, Mr. Harvey told Magistrate Sutton that "the evidence we have heard has been circumstantial and that the only eye-witness, the accused's wife, could not be called as she was not competent to testify against her husband."

Symes was then formally held over for trial at the spring assizes in Nanaimo.

"LET'S STOP DREAMING"

"Let's stop dreaming about our trip and really do something about it."

"What do you mean, dear?"

"Well the Star Weekly is conducting that $50,000 'Know Canada' contest and first prize is $10,000. Now wouldn't that give us a wonderful trip?"

"We could have a good trip on any of those 15 prizes that offer $500 and up."

"And all we have to do is guess the names of places in Canada from the clues in the pictures. Why they even give you a list of places containing the right answer, with each puzzle."

"I'll bring home extra copies of the Star Weekly. You know we can send in up to 4 entries each."
